

In a Socratic Seminar...

- All members participate
- Participants take turns – no hands
- Participants talk to other participants – not just the group leader
- Participants ask for clarification
- Participants have time to ponder and think
- The seminar remains open-ended, challenging and thoughtful